

Zebulon Drug Company turned to ScriptPro to solve staffing problem

Tad Adams, R.Ph., Owner

Jan Little, Pharmacy Technician, refills a cell at the SP 200.

“I lost a pharmacist and a tech at the same time and wasn’t sure what my manpower would be for the future. The tech told me the pressure of working in retail was too stressful. I’m in a small town competing with three chain stores and needed help. So a friend invited me to look at the SP 200 he had at his store.

“I noticed immediately that the SP 200 would give me the ability to adequately staff the store, even at times when I am by myself. It’s a time-saving device for the pharmacist—who is still involved by performing the final check.

The error reduction and risk management features are very important.

“The SP 200 gives me flexibility because when a patient calls at night, I can enter prescriptions from my home and when I get to the store they are already filled.

“I lease the SP 200 through my bank and will own it after five years. In five years my SP 200 will still be a good employee and will continue to serve our needs for many years to come. But my employment costs will go way down.

“Any pharmacist that owns a store understands that you spend more time at work than with your family. If there are things I can do to improve the workplace—make it more enjoyable, less stressful—I’m going to do it. Before I got the SP 200, I was ready to retire and now I’m not so ready. The SP 200 has allowed me to continue to enjoy my profession.”
